

Abstract of the Disclosure

An elevated pet feeder with removable easily cleaned food and water containers which fit into a table platform structured in a pet specific size and shape made of natural wood material of a heavy weight with heavy legs to hold the feeder in place while the pet 5 eats and drinks. The table surface comprises indentations, which enable the pet's neck to be positioned adjacent to the food and water containers.